7. POLICY MATTERS

Study Session Regarding Establishing a Minimum Wage Ordinance

This Study Session is an opportunity for the City Council to hear from a panel of experts, and to discuss and provide feedback regarding development of a local minimum wage ordinance. Should the Council wish to proceed with directing staff to prepare an ordinance for consideration, the Council is expected to provide specific direction regarding the elements it would like to see in a proposed local minimum wage ordinance for El Cerrito.

Presenters:

Mayor Friedman stated that the City had been researching minimum wage options for awhile and that it is exciting to be at the point the City is in now with the possible adoption of an ordinance raising the minimum wage and help alleviate poverty.

John Gioia, Supervisor, Contra Costa Board of Supervisors, recognized the leadership of the Mayor and City Council in addressing climate change and income equality. Supervisor Gioia explained that there is a regional effort to develop a common minimum wage throughout Contra Costa County and to link political support in the County with good public policy. Supervisor Gioia stated that there is a Self-Sufficiency Standard in Contra Costa County which is the amount of money needed for a family of four to avoid relying on public assistance. The amount is currently approximately $72,000 for a family of four, however, two people earning minimum wage earn approximately half this amount or $37,000 per year.

Marianna Moore, Director, Ensuring Opportunity Campaign to End Poverty in Contra Costa County. Ms. Moore said she was grateful to Supervisor Gioia for the statewide leadership he has shown. The Ensuring Opportunity Campaign is advocating a county wide uniform ordinance that is sound public policy and will be simultaneously adopted by all nineteen jurisdictions across the County. Although El Cerrito will be a vanguard of the movement, smaller cities will have a collective impact. The ordinance should be simple and workable without a lot of exceptions. The goal is a stepped wage increase to $15 per hour by 2020 by all jurisdictions in the County.

Annette Bernhardt, Senior Researcher, UC Berkeley Institute for Research on Labor and Education (Institute) stated that the County campaign is similar to other proposals and is very much in line with what other cities have done and/or are planning to do. The Institute has prepared impact studies for a number of California cities that are looking at raising the minimum wage including San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles, Sacramento and San Diego. The Institute is also preparing a study for the Ensuring Opportunity Campaign proposal however it has not been completed yet. There are 24 cities in the United States that have minimum wage laws. The East Bay has bounced back from the recession. Unemployment rates are down to below recession levels. Economic indicators show that although local economies are back on track, income inequality has been rising. In Contra Costa County, between 2007-2013, median annual earnings adjusted for inflation fell by 12 percent. The rise in income inequality has risen faster than in San Francisco. Studies indicate that lots of workers will benefit from the minimum wage proposal. Up to 38% of the workforce is expected to receive a minimum wage increase which will have a substantial impact on the local economy and addressing poverty. The Institute has found that a small majority of workers that will benefit from a minimum wage increase are teenagers. The majority are adults, most of whom have families and are communities of color or are immigrants. The two industries that are most impacted are restaurants and retail. It is difficult to assess impacts on El Cerrito however research completed at a broader level suggests that there are minimal to no negative impacts to employment associated with raising the minimum wage. When workers are paid more turnover is decreased and productivity increases. The Institute predicts modest price increases in the restaurant sector of 0.5-1% per year. Very small price increases are predicted in the retail sector. Dr. Bernhardt stated that it will be very hard to estimate impacts in El Cerrito versus another city because of data constraints. In Los Angeles, the Institute found that to the extent there is a reduction in employment growth from a higher minimum wage, the Institute expects that it will be more than offset by increased consumption by low wage workers and their families from the increased wages that they are earning. This stimulative effect is diffused throughout the region because of commuters and shows why it is important to develop a regional policy and economic approach and coordination. Dr. Bernhardt cautioned that a lot of her report is based on past minimum wage research and on minimum wage increases that are typically smaller than many cities are considering. The impact studies that the Institute is doing are prospective and are making predictions about the future and noted that there is a certain level of uncertainty associated with this. Dr. Bernhardt suggested that Cities monitor the community, workers and businesses after passing a minimum wage law.

Jennifer Lin, Deputy Director, East Bay Alliance for a Sustainable Economy (EBASE), stated that the mission of EBASE is to create a just economy in the East Bay economy based on good jobs and healthy communities. EBASE has helped pass Living Wage policies in the East Bay and was part of the coalition that helped pass minimum wage ordinances in Oakland and Emeryville. El Cerrito would be joining a movement of cities in the East Bay. Ms. Lin described lessons learned in the cities of Oakland and Emeryville. Polls across the nation show support for raising the minimum wage. There is consensus among small businesses in raising the minimum wage and in creating innovative ways to pay workers more. Big corporations can afford to pay more. Ms. Lin also spoke about how raising the minimum wage can affect the lives of workers. In one instance, a worker at McDonalds was able to take her daughter out for ice cream whenever she asked for it and to fill her car with gasoline. Ms. Lin commended the City’s leadership in taking a step forward in approving a minimum wage law and said her organization looks forward to working with a coalition of elected officials, workers, labor and community organizations to create a strong, effective policy that has at its core low wage workers.

Suzanne Jarla, Assistant to the City Manager, highlighted provisions of minimum wage laws passed by neighboring cities and also sought direction from the Council regarding development of a local minimum wage law.

Speakers: Cordell Hindler, Richmond, encouraged the City Council to adopt an ordinance.

Kevin O’Neal, El Cerrito, stated that he is a local coffee shop owner who employees local high school kids. He is opposed to a proposed minimum wage ordinance. Mr. O’Neal stated that he is terrified about the impacts a minimum wage law will have on his business and stated that automatic raises take away merit increases and will make hiring teenagers even more difficult among small businesses. Mr. O’Neal said El Cerrito is a small city with limited resources and doesn’t need to be in the vanguard but should sit back and wait.

Kiev Smith, El Cerrito, spoke in support of increasing the minimum wage in El Cerrito, noted that rents are high in El Cerrito and that he has friends that cannot afford to eat in a restaurant in El Cerrito.

Carla Hansen, El Cerrito Democratic Club President, spoke in support of increasing a minimum wage law in El Cerrito and stated that the Democratic Club has been building support for increasing the minimum wage over the last few months and urges the City Council to take swift action in adopting an ordinance and give a boost to the local economy. There is support from Boards and Commissions, community groups and businesses.

Dan Jameyson, Service Employees International Union (SEIU) 1021, President Rank and File Chapter, stated that SEIU supports increasing the minimum wage throughout the Bay Area and suggested an immediate increase of $12.25 per hour and $15.00 by 2018 with the addition of sick days and no exemptions.

Reverend Brian Woodson, Sr., El Cerrito, Leader of Faith, spoke in support of an increase in the minimum wage and stated that people that work for a living must be able to live. Reverend Woodson thanked Supervisor Gioia for his work on increasing the minimum wage and encouraged the City Council to increase the minimum wage. Reverend Woodson encouraged $15 per hour at 2018, or sooner, noted that paid sick days are important and stated that no business model should depend on the exploitation of anyone to survive.

Nicholas Arzio, El Cerrito and Vice President of the El Cerrito Democratic Club, stated that the Democratic Club passed a resolution urging the City Council to pass a local minimum wage rate in El Cerrito to be set no lower than the rate set by Richmond and that it should be passed by January 1, 2016. Mr. Arzio stated that the Democratic Club voted to support a local ordinance not a countywide ordinance although members may support a countywide ordinance too.

Helen Dickey, El Cerrito, thanked the City Council for taking up the issue.

Action: Discussion held. The City Council, by mutual consensus provided staff with the following direction:

1) Research raising the minimum wage to $15 per hour by 2018 vs. $15 per hour by 2020;

2) The ordinance should include an annual increase in the minimum wage, such as the Consumer Price Index;

3) Achieve consistent policies for all employers;

4) Research the inclusion of paid sick leave but not at the risk of slowing down a vote on the minimum wage ordinance;

5) Include the following best practices for enforcement in the ordinance; a) Private right of action; b) Damages and other penalties; c) Retaliation protections; and d) Notice posting and record keeping provisions;

6) Research how enforcement activities will be implemented in cooperation with the County as well as state or regional options. Rely on external support as much as possible including the option to outsource this function. The City Council also noted the importance of extensive and ongoing education and that enforcement activities may be placed into the ordinance at a future date after the initial minimum wage ordinance is passed;

7) Wage Liens present a level of complexity that should not be included in the ordinance at this time but looked into at the time enforcement arrangements are implemented; and

8) Promote homegrown, El Cerrito pride and one of-a-kind businesses.
