INTRODUCTION AND OVERVIEW

Congratulations! You have been selected to serve your community as a member of a City of El Cerrito Board, Commission or Committee (Advisory Bodies). The City Council and City staff believe that citizen participation is vital to the ongoing business and future progress of our community. We commend you on your commitment to the City and encourage you to become acquainted with all phases of your municipal government.

The primary purpose of this handbook is to provide general guidelines in the conduct of meetings to ensure compliance with laws and policies; inform members of the responsibilities and duties of the specific advisory bodies; and clarify relationships between appointed members and the City Council, City staff and the community.

City advisory bodies serve in various capacities and are managed by department assigned staff liaisons, in conjunction with the City Clerk's Office.

Public Records and Disclosure

The California Public Records Act, Government Code Sections 6250 et seq. ("Public Records Act"), governs public access to most government records. As a member of a city advisory body, all documentation provided to or exchanged with the city, including email and written correspondence, may be subject to public disclosure unless otherwise exempt under the act. The California Supreme Court has ruled that emails from personal devices or personal email accounts that relate to the City's business are public records subject to disclosure.

Types of Advisory Bodies

The City has Boards, Commissions and Committees. For ease of reference, this manual categorizes all three as advisory bodies, however they each have different functions. Boards and Commissions are directly responsible to the City Council and fill advisory and/or quasi-judicial roles. Commissions are composed of lay citizens while members for boards are selected for their special expertise. Committees sponsored by the city do not formally represent the city, have no official responsibility and do not fill quasi-judicial roles. Pursuant to El Cerrito Municipal Code (ECMC) §2.04.220(B)(10), regardless of the type of advisory body, provisions of the Brown Act must be following unless otherwise noted in the advisory body enabling legislation.

The city prohibits individuals residing at the same address from serving on the City Council and an advisory body, on the same advisory body, or advisory bodies with overlapping subject matter jurisdiction (Resolution 2013-68).

Ad-Hoc Committees

An ad-hoc committee is a temporary committee established for a special purpose and for a limited duration and is comprised of less than a quorum of members. The advisory body chair together with city staff shall determine the scope and approximate length of time the ad-hoc committee shall be needed.

The advisory body chair shall formally announce the formation of the committee, state the scope, and make all appointments. Once the ad-hoc committee has completed its task, the issue shall be agendaized and reported out before the full advisory body. Although not subject to the requirements of the Brown Act, ad-hoc committees may meet openly and post agendas if desired.

Standing Committees

A Standing Committee is an ongoing group formed for discussion or work on an ongoing topic or need within the subject matter jurisdiction of the advisory body and is comprised of less than a quorum of members. Although not subject to the requirements of the Brown Act, standing committees may meet openly and post agendas if desired. If there is any clarity needed on the appropriate type of committee for a given need, city staff shall consult with the City Clerk's Office for direction.

Formation and Structure

Formation and/or enabling legislation for advisory bodies are typically in the form of a city ordinance or resolution. General requirements for all advisory bodies are contained in ECMC § 2.04.220. Formation documents outline topics such as the number of members, attendance rules, quorum, background and qualifications requirements, as well as powers and duties.

El Cerrito Advisory Bodies

The City of El Cerrito currently has 13 advisory bodies which are managed by various departments. Each advisory body has a dedicated webpage that provide information for members, as well as the public. This includes powers and duties, enabling legislation, membership information, meeting schedules, agendas and minutes.

The following descriptions, linked to the applicable advisory body website, provides a brief overview of the membership, roles and responsibilities and training or disclosure requirements of each advisory body and are arranged by responsible departments.

GENERAL MEMBER PROVISIONS

General provisions for members of city advisory bodies, in large part, are contained in the city's municipal code Section 2.04.220. This includes the appointment process, terms, vacancies, absences, removal of members, quorum, minutes, staff assistance, and meeting schedules. In the event that a resolution or separate ordinance is in place for a specific advisory body, the provisions in those documents would prevail. If the advisory body's formation documents do not include an area covered by the municipal code, then the following general provisions would apply.

Term Length and Limits

Unless otherwise specified in the formation documents, term lengths are for a period of four years, commencing on March 1 (ECMC 2.04.220 (B)(3)). Members are limited to two consecutive full terms on each advisory body. At the end of the term, the incumbent shall reapply for their seat if they wish to continue serving on the advisory body. The term of the individual seat is fixed. Therefore, if a seat is vacated before the end of the term, the new member would serve the remainder of the current term. This is considered a "partial term" and does not count towards the two term limits.

All city advisory bodies have staggered terms so that an entire advisory body is not replaced at any given time. Generally, half of an advisory body's membership expires on a set date, with the other half expiring several years later. This method keeps informed members on the advisory body and allows the advisory body to function with a continued level of continuity and institutional knowledge as members are replaced.

At this time only the Crime Prevention Committee is not restricted to two terms (Resolution 2001-105).

Filling Vacancies

The City Clerk's Office manages the application process to fill expired and/or vacated advisory body seats. All applicants (including applicants for re-appointment) for boards, commissions, and the Citizens Street Oversight Committee will be invited to interview with the City Council at a noticed and open public meeting. After all candidates have been interviewed, the City Council will take action to make an appointment to fill the vacancies.

Applicants for committees will be directed to contact the staff liaison and begin attending meetings of the committee. After attending at least three meetings, the committee may take action to recommend that City Council appoint the individual. The staff liaison will work with the City Clerk's Office to agendaize the appointment of the individual at a subsequent City Council meeting. Incumbents interested in re-appointment shall submit a new application and the committee will be required to take action to recommend that City Council re-appoint the individual.

Attendance

Meeting attendance is essential as it establishes a quorum of the membership and permits the advisory body to conduct business. Regular and continued attendance also allows an advisory body to progress without having to continually bring absent advisory body members up to speed.

Unless otherwise specified in formation documents, the following attendance rules apply (ECMC § 2.04.220(4)).

1. If a member notifies the staff liaison of intended absence at least 24 hours prior to the scheduled meeting time, the absence is considered excused.
2. If a member is absent for an unforeseeable and unavoidable circumstance, and reports and explains such in writing to the staff liaison prior to the next meeting of the advisory body, the absence is considered excused.
3. If the member does not communicate their absence, it is considered unexcused.
4. Excused absences for medical reasons shall not exceed a period of 120 calendar days.

ECMC section 2.04.220 (B)(4)(a) provides presumption that failure of any member to attend three consecutive regular meetings without cause, or half of the regular meetings in a calendar year, or who no longer resides in the city, has resigned. If the member cannot regularly attend, the member is encouraged to respectfully resign. Annually in January, the City Clerk will review attendance reports for all advisory bodies to determine if any action is needed regarding removal of members.

Resignation

At any point, if a member wished to resign from their position on the advisory body, it shall be provided in writing. This is necessary as the seat cannot be filled until a resignation is on file with the City Clerk's Office, the member is removed by act of the City Council, or the member's term has expired. The member may send an email to the City Clerk's Office or announce his/her resignation openly at a meeting of their advisory body. If the latter occurs, the staff liaison will record such announcement in the meeting minutes and provide a copy of the minutes to the City Clerk's Office for verification. Confirmation, as well as notice of any required actions upon resignation, will be sent to the member by the City Clerk's Office.

Filing and Training Requirements

When the appointment of a member is confirmed, the City Clerk's Office will send formal notification as well as instructions for any applicable filing requirements.

Oath of Office

The City of El Cerrito considers all advisory body members to fall under the definition of a "public officer" and therefore all members are required to subscribe to the Oath of Office pursuant to Article XX of the California Constitution, and California Government Code

(GC) §36507. The Oath is required as a condition of entering into office and therefore shall be subscribed to prior to a member participating in their first advisory body meeting. The oath will also be required upon re-appointment of any additional terms, or subsequent appointment of an individual to a different advisory body. The signed oath shall be filed with the City Clerk, an original signature is required.

Ethics Training

Advisory bodies designated by Resolution 2013-67 are required to take two hours of local ethics training pursuant to GC §53235.1(b). Members are also required to take an additional two hours of training every two years thereafter for the duration of their term. A free on-line course available from the State Fair Political Practices Commission (FPPC) provides a course in compliance, and a completion certificate.

The City Clerk's Office monitors this program and informs members of the requirement to take this training. Completion is requested within 30 days of appointment. Once complete, a signed copy of the certificate shall be filed with the City Clerk, an original signature is not required.

The following advisory body members are currently subject to this requirement:

1. Arts and Culture Commission
2. Design Review Board
3. Financial Advisory Board
4. Park and Recreation Commission
5. Planning Commission

Statement of Economic Interests Filings (Form 700)

Advisory bodies designated by the city's Conflict of Interest Code (Resolution 2018-55) have a requirement to file the Statement of Economic Interests Form 700 (Form 700). Additionally, members of the Planning Commission are required to file with the State pursuant to Government Code section 87200. The Form 700 is required within 30 days of appointment (assuming), annually on April 1st (annual) and within 30 days of leaving the advisory body (leaving). The City Clerk's Office is the official filing officer for this form and communicates directly with advisory body members regarding this requirement. The signed statements shall be filed with the City Clerk, an original signature is required.

The City Clerk's Office is always available to assist members with filing resources but cannot provide legal advice. In the event a member is late or refuses to file, the City Clerk's Office has an obligation to forward the case to the Fair Political Practices Commission (FPPC) for enforcement. All efforts will be taken to avoid enforcement referrals.

The following advisory body members are currently subject to this requirement:

1. Arts and Culture Commission
2. Design Review Board
3. Financial Advisory Board
4. Planning Commission

ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Most roles and responsibilities are common to all advisory body members. The following are guidelines to assist members in realizing their full potential as a member of a city advisory body. This section is also intended to provide a better understanding of specific roles played by some advisory body members, and certain city staff.

Common Member Responsibilities

Understand your role and the scope of your responsibility. Generally, the role of advisory body members is to advise the City Council on specific City program areas and related policies. Members should not become involved in the administrative or operational matters of City departments unless specifically provided in the statement of the powers and duties of the Board, Commission or Committee. Members should take every opportunity to learn about related City programs and be sure to read any and all material that City staff provides.

Follow rules and procedures. All advisory body members are governed by city rules and procedures that apply to their area of assignment. Members must also adhere to the Brown Act, which is discussed in a subsequent section, and follow any adopted procedural rules for the conduct of meetings.

Represent the community rather than any special interest. In making appointments to citizen advisory bodies, the City Council often seeks to ensure that there is a diversity of backgrounds and interests. All advisory body members should welcome citizen input and strive to serve the broader community. Members should be committed to promoting, listening and giving serious consideration to a full range of opinions. Decisions should be fair and impartial and be based on the greater public good.

Maintain good working relationships with all advisory body members. Although the members often represent divergent interests, they must work as one to accomplish the goals of the advisory body. Cooperation is crucial to the success or failure of the advisory group. In order to build consensus and reach common goals and objectives, members should demonstrate a willingness to give objective consideration to matters before them and an ability to work to reconcile contradictory viewpoints to the extent feasible.

Understand your relationship to the City Council and City staff. The ability of any advisory body to accomplish its goals depends in part upon establishing and maintaining good working relations with the City Council and City staff. Members should never portray themselves as responsible for a decision or recommendation that rightfully belongs to the advisory group as a whole. When a member of an advisory body addresses the City Council on a matter, the member must represent the viewpoint of the advisory group as a whole (not a personal opinion), unless a proper qualification is made. Advisory body members occasionally make recommendations or decisions that ultimately are reversed by the City Council. It is important to show respect for the authority of City Council members, who in their capacity as elected officials are charged with making decisions for the community.

City staff may have authority to make administrative decisions or recommendations, with which you may disagree. In this case, staff's authority should also be recognized. Advisory body members should be careful to avoid the appearance of influencing a staff member or placing a staff member in a compromising position. Staff has technical expertise that may be made available to the advisory body. It is especially important that members do not ask staff to commit to work that has not been budgeted or approved, or in any way try to direct the priority of work for the department providing technical advisory staff.

Limitations

If an advisory body wishes to request staff to pursue projects that will require an excessive amount of staff time, they must first request council permission. Staff liaisons are not employees of the advisory body but are directly responsible to the department director and/or the City Manager (Administrative Policy (AP) I A 6).

Unless specifically authorized by City Council, advisory bodies may not represent the policy of the city and may not directly communicate with outside agencies. They may not take any financial actions such as endorsing grant applications, receiving donations, fundraising, approving use of city property, or any other action which commits or indicates the intention to commit the city (AP I A 6).

Advisory body members may not ask for individual reports, favor or special consideration. Requests and communication shall be restricted to the framework of the advisory body's assignment. Any citizen complaints should be referred back to the staff liaison and not personally acted upon (AP I A 6).

Conflict of Interest

Participation in any agency action by a member who has a conflict of interest may not only invalidate the agency's action but may also expose the individual to penalties and sanctions.

The most common conflict of interest issues arise with respect to financial conflicts of interest (under the Political Reform Act, Government Code Section 87100 et seq.) and financial interests in contracts per Government Code Section 1090 et seq., which are briefly summarized below. In addition, the city attorney has provided a guide for Conflict of Interest and Ethics for Local Government Officials: Political Reform Act and Common Law Conflicts of Interest.

Political Reform Act

The basic prohibition under the Political Reform Act ("PRA") is that public officials are disqualified from participating in government decisions in which they have a financial interest. Generally, a public official or employee has a disqualifying conflict of interest when all of the following occur:

1. The official makes, participates in, or uses his or her official position to influence a government decision;

2. It is foreseeable that the decision will affect the official's economic interest;
3. The effect of the decision on the official's economic interest will be material;
4. The effect of the decision on the official's economic interest will be distinguishable from its effect on the public generally.

If the answer to all of these questions is yes, a conflict of interest exists and disqualification is required. Disqualified public officials are also required to leave the meeting room during action on the item; however, the law also permits them to remain in the room if they intend to participate in the matter as a member of the public, once they have left the dais. Each matter must be determined on a case-by-case basis. Because of the complexity and potential consequences of conflicts issues, it is critical that if any member becomes aware of even a possibility of a conflict, they should immediately contact the City Clerk for guidance.

Financial Interest in Contracts

Government Code Section 1090, et seq., involves conflicts of interest in contracts. Section 1090 prohibits officers or employees from having financial interests in contracts made by them in their official capacity or by any board or body of which they are members. Section 1090 was enacted to codify the common law prohibition against self-dealing. Although the term "financial interest" is not specifically defined in the statute, an examination of case law and statutory exceptions to the basic prohibition indicates that the term is to be liberally interpreted and can include both direct and indirect interests in a contract.

Even if the public official only has a "remote interest" (as defined in Government Code Section 1091 and case law) in a contract, the public official must nonetheless disclose the interest, have it noted in the official record, and abstain from voting. Failure to do so makes the contract void. If the public official is found guilty of willfully violating any of the provisions of Section 1090 et seq., such willful violations are punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment in state prison as well as the individual forever being disqualified from holding any office in the state.

If it is determined that the public official has a "non-interest" (as defined by Government Code Section 1091.5 et seq.), the public official is not required to abstain from voting and disclosure is generally not required (although in some instances disclosure is required). For example, a public official who is a non-salaried member of a non-profit corporation is not deemed interested in contracts of that corporation in accordance with Government Code Section 1091.5(a)(7). Nonetheless, that section requires disclosure of the public official's interest at the time the contract is first considered and noting of the interest in the official records.

Other Conflict of Interest Laws

Separate and apart from the Political Reform Act and Government Code Section 1090 et seq., other laws may require disqualification from decision making and even forfeiture of office in certain circumstances. Some of the other conflict of interest laws to consider are as follows:

1. Bias. Whenever a City official will participate in a quasi-judicial decision, the common law prohibition against biased decision-making must be considered. The official should disqualify themselves if the official is biased in favor of or against a party involved in a quasi-judicial decision. The City official must be prepared to apply the law to the particular fact situation presented during the hearing regardless of what pre-hearing opinions the official may hold.
2. No Free Rides. A person who holds a public office may not accept a free pass or discount from a transportation company. If this prohibition is violated, the person forfeits the office. (California Constitution Article XII, Section 7.)
3. Incompatibility of Offices. Whenever a person holding a public office intends to simultaneously hold a second public office, the doctrine of incompatible public offices should be considered. If the duties of two offices are incompatible, a public official assuming the second such office vacates the first office. (California Government Code Section 1099.)
4. Incompatibility of Outside Activity. Whenever a person holding a position as a local agency official or employee intends to engage in any other employment, activity, or enterprise for compensation, the provisions of Government Code Section 1126 should be considered where the agency has adopted rules related to this subject. Agency rules implementing this section impose a duty on every local agency official and employee not to engage in any outside activity for compensation that is inconsistent, incompatible, in conflict with, or inimical to his/her:
 - a. Duties as a local agency officer or employee;
 - b. The duties, functions, or responsibilities of his/her appointing power or the agency by which he/she is employed.

Chair and Vice Chair Roles

Each advisory body annually in April, elects a Chair and Vice Chair. The advisory body chair (or in their absence, the vice chair) is responsible for the following:

1. Presides over all meetings of the commission and ensures that the work of the commission is accomplished. To this end the chairperson must exert sufficient control of the meeting to eliminate irrelevant, repetitious or otherwise unproductive discussion. At the same time the chair must ensure that all viewpoints are heard and are considered in a fair and impartial manner.
2. Appoints members to temporary subcommittees subject to the approval of the advisory body.
3. Works with the staff liaison to determine the contents of the agenda prior to distribution.
4. Represents the commission before the City Council.
5. Signs correspondence and meeting minutes on behalf of the advisory body.
6. Performs other duties necessary or customary to the office.

Council Liaison

A member of the City Council is assigned to each advisory body with the responsibility of reporting on council actions and activities. The council liaison is required to attend and deliver this report to the advisory body quarterly. They shall remove themselves to the audience, or leave the room, and not participate in the meeting after said report is delivered, as outlined in Resolution 2013-68.

Staff Liaison

Staff liaisons are responsible for several areas including generating meeting materials, management of advisory body records, facilitating meetings, advising members, and ensuring compliance with the Brown Act and Parliamentary Procedure.

All contact from advisory body members to any staff (other than the liaison), and any communication with advisory body members shall exclusively be through the staff liaison (AP I A 6). The staff liaison is responsible for ensuring adequate communication with advisory body members, as well as the City Council assigned liaison.

MEETING ADMINISTRATION

All members are responsible for understanding areas of meeting conduct required of city advisory bodies and are expected to understand the provision of the Ralph M. Brown Act and Parliamentary Procedure.

The Ralph M. Brown Act

All city advisory bodies are subject to the provisions of the Ralph M. Brown Act (Brown Act). The Brown Act provides statutory rules for how meetings are conducted, how advisory body members conduct themselves, as well as agenda and posting requirements.

The Brown Act defines a meeting as “any congregation of a majority of the members of a legislative body at the same time and location, including teleconference location (as permitted by GC § 54953), to hear, discuss, deliberate, or take any action on any item that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the legislative body.” The Brown Act is clear that the body does not need to take action in order for the gathering to be defined as a meeting.

Definition of a meeting does not extend to individual contact by members, attendance at conferences and seminars, attending an open meeting of another public agency, community meetings, social or ceremonial events; even if a quorum of members are present, provided that they are not discussing or taking action on any item within the subject matter jurisdiction. There are several types of meetings defined under the Brown Act.

Regular Meetings

Regular meetings are defined as meetings held on the dates, times and in the location set by resolution, ordinance or other formal action by the legislative body. At least 72 hours prior to a regular meeting, all pages of the agenda must be physically posted at the meeting location. The agenda shall contain a brief general description of each item to be discussed or transacted at the meeting. The Brown Act makes it clear that discussed items must be placed on the agenda, as well as items which may be the subject of action.

The agenda shall specify the time, date and location of the regular meeting and shall be posted in a location that is freely accessible to the members of the public for the full 72 hours immediately preceding the meeting. No action or discussion shall be had on any item not appearing on the posted agenda, except that members or staff may briefly respond to statements made or questions posed by persons commenting under the Public Comment-Matters Not on the Agenda section of the agenda.

Special Meetings

Special meetings are those meetings that have not been pre-approved by the advisory body as a regular meeting. A meeting not held at the regular meeting location is also considered a special meeting and requires that the agenda be posted both at the regular location and the current location. A Public Comment-Matters Not on the Agenda section is not to be included on a special agenda. All other requirements with regard to the content of a special meeting agenda are the same as the requirements of a regular meeting.

At least 24 hours prior to a special meeting, the agenda must be posted, containing a brief general description of each item to be discussed or transacted at the meeting. The city's general practice is, when possible, to post at least 72 hours in advance for all meetings, including special meetings.

Joint Meetings

Joint meetings fall under the category of special meetings. At a joint meeting, only those items that are of interest to both advisory bodies may be discussed. Meeting minutes of the individual advisory bodies may not be agendaized at a joint meeting. All other requirements with regard to the content of a joint meeting agenda are the same as the requirements of a special meeting.

Adjourned Meetings

A notice of Adjournment shall suffice for the posting of an adjourned meeting. The items of unfinished business on the posted agenda of which the notice of adjournment was ordered shall suffice for the official notice of business to be conducted. The notice shall include a time, date and location specific for the holding of the Adjourned meeting and be posted on or near the door of place where meeting was held within 24 hours of adjournment.

Common Violations

It is important to understand what a serial meeting is in order to avoid inadvertently violating the Brown Act.

A serial meeting occurs when a majority of members of a legislative body “uses a series of communications of any kind, directly or through intermediaries, to discuss, deliberate, or take action on any item of business that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the legislative body.” This can happen when discussions and opinions are expressed with only a portion of a legislative body, but eventually involves a majority. There are two scenarios in which this commonly occurs.

1. Daisy Chain - Member A contacts Member B, Member B contacts Member C, Member C contacts Member D and so on, until a quorum has discussed, deliberated, or taken action on an item within the legislative body’s subject matter jurisdiction.
2. Hub and Spoke - Member A (the hub) sequentially contacts Members B, C, and D and so on (the spokes), until a quorum has been contacted.

A second scenario is when a staff member (the hub) briefs a majority of members (the spokes) prior to a formal meeting and, in the process, information about the members’ respective views is revealed.

Each of these scenarios violates the Brown Act. Legal action may be sought to nullify an agency decision because of any violation of the Brown Act.

Teleconferencing

The Brown Act specifically allows teleconferencing to meet, receive public comment and testimony, deliberate or conduct a closed session. A member may teleconference as long as the following requirements are met:

- Teleconference location must be identified on the agenda
- Agenda must be posted at all locations (physical and teleconference)
- Each teleconference location must be accessible to members of the public
- At least a quorum of members must participate from within the jurisdiction
- All votes must be done by roll call

If a member wants to participate in a meeting from a non-qualifying teleconferencing location, they are permitted to call in and listen, but cannot ask questions, comment or participate in the discussion, or vote.

Meeting Agenda and Discussion

Discussion at each meeting is limited to what is on the agenda. Brief responses to statements or questions, announcements, request for report back, or future agenda items is the limited acceptable dialogue for items not on the agenda.

Meeting Materials

Materials distributed to the advisory body less than 72 hours prior to the meeting must be simultaneously made available to the public. If materials are distributed by the agency during the meeting, copies for the public must be available during the meeting. If materials are provided by the public during the meeting, they must be made available after the meeting.

Parliamentary Procedure

Parliamentary procedure is a set of rules that govern the conduct of business at public meetings. City advisory bodies may choose to establish and adopt Rules of Procedure. In the absence of, the advisory body shall follow the Standard Code of Parliamentary Procedures (Standard) (formerly Sturgis) for conduct of business at meetings (ECMC 2.04.220(B)(7)). Standard procedural rules are an accepted and standard set of procedures for conducting public meetings and are outlined as follows.

Quorum

A quorum is the number of members required to be present in order to hold the meeting. For some advisory bodies, the quorum is established in the formation documents as a specific number of members. This number cannot change, even when there are vacant seats. For other advisory bodies, the quorum is a majority of members currently serving. In this instance, the quorum can change with the number of seats officially filled. For advisory bodies that establish a quorum on the number of seats filled, the staff liaison shall carefully monitor vacancies and resignations. This is important to ensure that the proper quorum is established before calling any meeting to order. A majority is established as more than half.

For city committees, while quorum is a majority of members currently serving, a meeting may be conducted with two members for purpose of doing the work of the committee, however formal action requires at least three members to be present to take action (ECMC 2.04.220(B)(5)(b)).

If a quorum is not established, the meeting must be cancelled. The advisory body chair or vice-chair shall call for a quorum and wait a reasonable length of time to determine if a quorum can be established. Each advisory body may establish a reasonable waiting time based on the logistics of the particular advisory body; generally, not more than 15-30 minutes. If a quorum cannot be established, the meeting is adjourned.

Motions

Motions are a way that advisory body members communicate their ideas and/or positions. Motions also allow the advisory body to progress through popular ideas and get past unpopular ideas without excessive discussion on ideas that are not supported by the majority.

Unless otherwise noted, when a member makes a motion, it requires a second member to verbally “second” the motion in order for the advisory body to vote on the proposed action. If a second is not obtained, no further action occurs. Although there are many types of motions, the most commonly used during the deliberative process are outlined below.

- Main Motion– This motion is the first idea introduced for consideration by the advisory body. A main motion cannot be made when another motion is before the advisory body. Main motions are introduced with “I move that...”
- Substitute Motion – This motion introduces a second idea for consideration that is different from the main motion. Substitute motions are introduced with “I move to adopt the following motion in lieu of the main motion. I move that...”
- Amended – This motion amends a main or substitute motion (that has received a second) but does not change the basic premise of the motion. This motion may also be referred to as a friendly amendment and may be handled informally. If the members who make and second a motion agree with the minor change (and state so verbally), then a motion may be amended without a vote. Amended motions can be introduced with “I move to amend that motion by adding/removing/modifying ...”
- Continue – This motion is to introduce the consideration that an issue be continued or postponed for consideration, to a certain time and date. This can be introduced with “I move to postpone the motion until...”
- Table – This motion is intended to terminate further consideration of an issue under discussion, as well as prevent any other motion from being made at that meeting. Tabling a motion does not prevent an issue from being agendaized at a future meeting, rather postpones consideration. This motion is made with “I move to table the motion.” This motion requires 2/3 affirmative votes to pass, rather than a simple majority.
- Reconsider – This motion is to introduce the reconsideration of a motion already voted on. The member motioning for reconsideration shall have been in the majority of those voting on the original motion. If a motion for reconsideration is successful, the members may then open up the matter to further discussion and make new motions as appropriate. During discussion testimony shall be limited to new facts that were not known at the time of the original motion. A previously voted motion may only be reconsidered at the same or next meeting of the advisory body. If the reconsideration is not at the same meeting, the issue shall be included on the agenda of the next meeting. This motion is introduced with “I move to reconsider the motion that was adopted [when] to...”

- Withdrawal of a Motion - A motion may be withdrawn by the member who moved it and is introduced with “I move to withdraw my motion.” This does not require the consent of the member who seconded and can only be done before the motion is voted on.

Point of Order

This action is to protest a breach in the rules or conduct of the advisory body. A point of order does not require a second. The motioning member may interrupt the speaker and take the floor.

Adjournment

This officially ends the agenda after all business has been heard. If there are no items of business left on the agenda, an official motion is not required. The chair simply calls the meeting to adjournment by stating “This meeting is now adjourned.”

If items remain on the agenda, a motion and second is required and can be introduced with “I move to adjourn”

Majority Vote

An issue must receive a majority of affirmative votes to pass. A majority is more than half of the members present and voting. This is the same math that is used to establish a quorum but is not necessarily the same number. For example: A majority quorum of a nine-member advisory body is five ($9 / 2 = 4.5$ or 5 rounding up). A member cannot be split in half, so the majority is always rounded up to the next whole number. If five members are present a quorum is reached. With five members present and voting, a majority vote is three ($5 / 2 = 2.5$ or 3 rounded up). Some advisory bodies have a set number of votes that are required to affirmatively pass an issue. This number would be in the advisory body’s formation documents. However, most advisory bodies calculate the affirmative vote threshold on the majority of members present once a quorum is established.

Tie Vote

A tie vote is not a vote in the affirmative. A tie is when an even number of members vote yes and no. Tie votes may also occur when there are an odd number of members voting, but one member abstains. Motions with tie votes fail.

Abstention

A vote of abstention is counted as a no vote. For example: in the scenario above, 5 members present and voting receives 2 yes, 2 no, and one abstention, the vote is not a vote in the affirmative. It is the same as 2 yes and 3 no.
